

ONE HUNDRED THINGS TO DO BEFORE I DIE

One of the most interesting and fun exercises we can do is make a comprehensive list of experiences we would like to have before we die. The Cornell Legacy Project has found that the “wisest elders” among us uniformly say that creating and pursuing bucket list goals is something that brings nothing but rewards throughout life, while not having one results in regrets and missed experiences.

This list is one way to keep track of the many ways in which you can conceive and achieve the dreams you have for yourself. Please refer to this completed list often, and check off the experiences as you knock them off!

To help you complete this list, I am including some prompts and questions before each set of ten goals. If you are having no trouble filling in your list, just skip them, but if you need help thinking outside the box, you might find these questions useful and thought-provoking.

Bear in mind that the more people who know about your goals, the more likely you are to achieve them. So share this list with people who are encouraging, supportive and who also have goal-directed thoughts and behavior if you want to maximize your chances of success.

Many people also find it helpful to meet monthly in a Mastermind Group where goal-setting and brainstorming occur amidst the best possible circumstances. These meetings can be life-changing and energizing, so let me know if you'd like the guidelines on how to start your own group to get going and keep going with the accomplishment of the goals you're about to enumerate.
